Cleveland Committee on Foreign Relations
A Look at the Past Seasons: 2015-2020

Every season, the Council’s team aims to deliver a thought-provoking line-up of topics and national experts to offer CCFR members meaningful coverage of current global trends. Here we look back at the last five years of Cleveland Council on Foreign Relations’ programming.

2019-2020 Season

Kemal Kirisci: Turkey, a U.S. Ally Adrift: Is a Reversal Possible?
Dany Bahar: Venezuela: How We Got Here, and What’s Next?
Ambassador Richard Hoagland: The New Silk Road: U.S. Strategic Interests in the Caspian Sea Region
Ambassador Stephen Young: Taiwan and the U.S.: What Does the Future Hold?
Richard Rossow: India’s Rise as an Economic and Military Power
Farah Pandith: How We Win: Defeating the Extremist Threat
Chris Demchak: Cyber Conflict and New Global Reality: Threats and Possibilities for Democratic Survival
Frances Burwell: The Post-COVID-19 Transatlantic Relationship

2018-2019 Season

Jarrett Blanc: Where Do We Go From Here: The Future of U.S.-Iran Relations
Richard Miles: At a Crossroads - Insight Into the U.S.-Mexico Relationship
Roy Kamphausen: U.S.-China Relations, A Look at the Military
Anna Borshchevskaya: Exploring Russia’s Role in the Middle East
Mathew Burrows: Alternative Futures for the World: Examining Global Order
Geoffrey Gertz: NAFTA 2.0 and the Future of American Trade Policy
Ambassador Bruce Wharton: U.S. Interests and Policy in Africa
Walter Berbrick: Challenges and Trials in the Arctic
Cleveland Committee on Foreign Relations

2017-2018 Season

Abigail Esman: Beyond Terrorism: Addressing Terrorism at Home and Abroad
Klaus-Dieter Frankenberger: The Merkel Regime - Germany after the Election
Scott Stewart: Understanding Cybersecurity and Physical Security
Andrea Murta: Anatomy of Corruption: The Case of Brazil
Naoyuki Agawa: Japan’s Security Policy in East Asia and Beyond: North Korea, China and the Alliance
David Dollar: China’s Growing Role in the World Economy
Sarah Feuer: Religion and Politics in North Africa: Emerging Trends and Implications for U.S. Policy
Michael Peterson: A New ‘Type’ of War: Russian Warfare in the 21st Century

2016-2017 Season

Richard Newcomb: Economic and Financial Threats: Making Smart Sanctions Smarter
Admiral Dennis C. Blair, Marcus Noland, Satu Limaye, Fukuo Hashimoto: Why Japan Matters
Michael Weidokal: The 2017 Global Economic and Risk Outlook
Admiral Jonathan White: The Arctic and Climate Change
Evans J.R. Revere: The Future of the U.S.-North Korea Relationship
Ambassador Chas Freeman: Reimagining Relations with the Middle East
Ambassador Tibor Nagy: Africa’s Future and Why It’s Important to the U.S.
Constanze Stelzenmuller: Europe and NATO

2015-2016 Season

Dr. Lyle Goldstein: Meeting China Halfway: How to Defuse the Evolving U.S.-China Rivalry
Dr. Thomas Karako: Missile Defense and North Korea
Michael Weidokal: The Outlook for the Global Economy in 2016
Christopher Sandrolini: The U.S.-Canada Relationship after the Canadian Election
Andrea Murta: Brazil Beyond the Headlines: Looking at the Hard Choices Ahead
Fiona Hill: Mr. Putin: Operative in the Kremlin
Philip French: Venezuela: The Erstwhile Ally
Ambassador Kurt Volker: How the West Can Win